Communiqué from Greenwood High

The atmosphere and environment in our school eludes of positivity which motivates the children to hone their reading and writing skills. We do this through exploration rather than explanation.

Parent Resource Corner

Mummy's and daddy's love to see their little ones set up a dinner table, help in cleaning up and be part of family play like chess and scrabble and march off on weekends to the park and to the movies.

Games are integral part of early child development and allow children to build skills and harness their energy towards positivity. Physical exercises give impetus to the old saying "All work and no play makes jack a dull boy". As it stimulates the brain centre keeping children a notch above the rest.

Drawing is an expression of one's imagination and color which makes young children think beyond the horizon.

A good game to be played in a confined of an apartment is treasure hunt. The idea is to create your own treasure, which could be old jewellery, gold coins, candy, and toy presents that you hide all over the house or the backyard, or you can create a treasure chest out of a cardboard box with a map where X marks the spot! Parents and kids can dress up like pirates with eye patches and you can have games such as walking on the plank or the children can go play with plastic swords.
