Communique from Centre Head

The temperature has dropped and the winds are blowing giving an aura which is associated with the season of Christmas. This season reminds us that we ought to be grateful for all that we have and share these feelings with those who do not have.

Parent's Corner

While 3 and 4 year olds still need plenty of parental help, here's how you can encourage them to become more independent.

- Resist doing for them what they can do themselves

While it may be quicker and easier to do it yourself, it won't help to make your child more self-sufficient.

- Don't redo what they've done

Unless absolutely necessary, don't fix what your child accomplishes.

- Let them solve simple problems

Give your child a moment to solve things by themselves do not rush in to help. These are the character-building moments, which help the child understand the meaning of success.

- Assign a chore

Putting your preschooler in charge of a regular simple task will build her confidence and sense of competency. The goal is to make your child feel like a capable, contributing member of the family.

- Warning of transitions

If your child pitches a fit whenever you announce it's time to switch gears –whether that means shutting off the TV, stopping play to come eat, or leaving a friend's house – it could be that you're not giving enough advance notice.

- Set an example for your child

You're probably the person your preschooler sees and imitates the most. So it's up to you to model politeness, sharing, manners and patience.

Teacher's corner

At our school we believe that the kids are typically able to do more than many of us think. We as teachers and facilitators promote independence by allowing them to do small chores like taking their breakfast plate, putting the plate away, cleaning up the toys before going out of the class etc. Predictable routines help the children to learn faster thereby increasing their self-confidence. Humor and games helps the teacher to make the child to do something when they are not in the mood.

The Christmas Spirit – The spirit Of Giving

We wish all of you the best for this season and a very happy 2016. May the spirit of Christmas be with you throughout the New Year. To all those who'll go on a holiday, Bon Voyage and for those who are in Bangalore, Have a lovely holiday.
